SECOND GAME CALLED, TIE SCORE

MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED BABIES APPEAR BEFORE THEIR JUDGES IN THE TEST

Arbiters Become More Expert in Making Eliminations and Progress Is Speeded Up with Help of Four Nurses

Final Examination on Saturday of Those Who Survive First Survey of Contestants in Championship

MOTHERS, TAKE NOTICE

Today the rest of the two-year-olds from K to Z will be judged, also the babies aged one to two years.

Friday will be reserved for the little babies 6 months to 2 years.

It is the expectation that prize winners of the Glendale district can be announced Saturday.

The finals in the Los Angeles contest, in which the Glendale prize winners will be entered, will take place Monday afternoon, October 9, in the dining room of the Ambassador hotel, Los Angeles.

More than one hundred babies lined up before the judges in the best baby contest at Pendroy's Wednesday, but the judges had learned considerable about the system of judging and with the help of the four nurses from the Glendale sanitarium, who weighed and measured the little folk, they were able to pass them in review quite rapidly.

Some of the mothers wondered that they were not undressed and submitted to a more critical examination, but it should be understood that this judging was an elimination contest, which will show what babies come nearest to meeting the requirements of the perfect child. Those children will be asked to come again on Saturday, when they will be undressed and will be examined critically to determine in what respect one is superior to another.

The babies to be judged today are all the 2-year-olds who failed to present themselves Wednesday and all the babies 1 year old to 2 years old.

Friday the last of the babies or the infants from 6 months to 1 year will be judged.

Saturday, as stated, a group of children of all ages which will possibly number 25 that most nearly approach perfection will be asked to present themselves for the final contest.

Splendid service was rendered Wednesday by Dr. Laura Brown, Dr. A. M. Duncan, Dr. D. A. Baker, Dr. Caroline Paine Jackman, Dr. Frances Eble, Dr. Floyd Thompson, Dr. A. D. Smith, Dr. Frederick Rossiter.

The assisting nurses were the Misses Helen Gardner, Mary Adams, Lorraine Hatcher and Norma Rogers.

As yesterday Mrs. Earl Pendroy was on duty helping where she could serve to the best advantage and giving away balloons which proved to be wonderful pacifyers of nervous babies.

The average of the children in beauty and physique was wonderful and some children scored so nearly perfect it is certain the prize winners will be worthy the rewards offered.

POLICE WORK WINS PRAISE

A. M. Dowes Writes Letter of Appreciation to Chief

Chief of Police Fraser is carrying a very contented smile today. It was created by a letter received from A. M. Dowes of 145 North Louise street, which in its contents was extremely complimentary to the police department in general and certain officers in particular.

The letter follows:

"Yesterday afternoon while on a bicycle I was run over by an automobile on Central avenue. Three of your officers in an automobile came along and rendered the necessary first aid.

"I don't know the names of these officers, nor yours, but I wish to congratulate you for having that kind of men on your force, and thank them for their gentlemanly conduct and considerate attention.

"Please convey to them this message."

"A ray of sunshine such as this," said Chief Fraser this morning, "always makes us feel good."

The clergyman had called unexpectedly and Mrs. Smith had been out. However, little Bobby had been there, and while the visitor was waiting for Mrs. Smith to return did his best to entertain him.

"Well, Bobby, I hope you behaved nicely when the minister called?" she asked on her return.

"Oh, yes, ma! I heard him say he hadn't a card with him, so I slipped a whole pack into his pocket when he wasn't looking."

NEW YORK GIANTS AND MANAGER McGRAW AFTER HE HAD WON HIS EIGHTH PENNANT

FANS HEAR PLAY BY PLAY AT PRESS BUILDING

Hundreds of baseball fans are taking advantage today of the play by play service on the world series that is being afforded by the Glendale Daily Press. The crowd that has gathered in front of the Press office is composed of typical baseball fans.

As the plays, received through the United Press leased wire direct from the Polo grounds, were passed the waiting enthusiastic crowd cheered. As the game progressed the excitement became more and more intense.

From the moment the scoring began in the first inning there was hardly a quiet moment. The Giants secured a three-run lead over their opponents in the first chapter. From that inning excitement reigned.

The play by play reports of the world's series games will be announced to the baseball fans in front of the Press office every day during the series, beginning at 11 o'clock. For those who cannot give the time to listening to the reports as they come in, the Glendale Press is issuing daily a special baseball extra. This will be on the streets daily shortly after the game is finished in New York.

GRAND OLD MAN MATHEWSON IS WATCHING

(By LUCILLE F. SAUNDERS)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—"What do I think of the game? Great!"

"How would I like to have been out there? I'd rather have been there than sitting here."

Thus Christy Mathewson, the grand old man of baseball, summed up the first game of the world series and the first ball game he has seen in 26 months.

Unmarked by the long siege of illness he has been through, sunbrowned as an Indian, hearty and firm of hand grip, Christy came back yesterday from Saranac to see the baseball's aristocracy perform.

A thumbed newspaper clipping was in one hand.

"How the Giants and Yankees compared," read its head line.

Christy saw the game from the grandstand behind the wire screen, where he likewise held a handshaking reception. His entry was the signal for a rousing cheer from the fans.

SERVICE METERS

The public service department of Glendale reports that during the month of September 101 water meters and 231 lighting meters were installed here, these bringing the total number of meters to: Water, 7018; light, 8537.

HUGGINS ADMITS GIANTS GOT THE BREAK

By MILLER J. HUGGINS
Manager of the New York Yankees
(Copyright, 1922, by United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Without trying to detract from the class of the Giants, it can be said that they had all the edge on the breaks in the first game. The Yanks are at a slight disadvantage now, but we are still confident that we will win the series.

Bob Shawkey is ready to pitch and he will be an effective hurler against the Giants. If he is in real form he will win today and tie up the series.

DRAMATIC CLUB FOR GLENDALE

Several well-known residents of Glendale wish to organize a social dramatic club for the purpose of bringing together persons interested in dramatic art and kindred lines. It is proposed to meet one evening a week to study one-act and other plays, to produce specialties and to enjoy a social time. Meetings will be held at the homes of members until other arrangements are made. There will be no expenses of any kind except such as are incidental to the producing of plays. A meeting to organize such a club will be held next Monday evening, October 9, at 7:30, at the home of Miss Dorothy Woods, secretary pro tem, 122 West Milford street. Phone Glendale 394. Professionals and amateurs welcome.

MONTROSE TO DANCE FOR C. OF C.

In order to swell the building fund for the Montrose chamber of commerce a community dance will be given Saturday night, October 7, at the Glendale city park.

As this is a benefit affair, a good crowd should turn out and help Montrose build this new chamber of commerce building.

The regular fee of five cents a dance will be charged and music for the occasion will be furnished by Kelly's Shrine club orchestra of six pieces. There will be several "lucky spot" dances, for which prizes of home-made cakes and beautiful boxes of candy will be given away.

The ladies of Montrose are donating 75 home-made cakes which will be cut and sold with punch during the evening.

The entertainment committee, which has charge of the affair, includes Mrs. J. F. Scheffer, chairman, Mrs. S. Young, Mrs. Charles A. Ellis and Mrs. M. Card.

STEAL VISITOR'S CAR

G. B. Blanchet of 371 Pioneer drive reported to the Glendale police that while he was in Los Angeles last night his Ford touring car was stolen. He was compelled to return to Glendale on a Pacific Electric car. A search is being made for the missing car.

MRS. GIBSON IS HONORED BY BOARD

Mrs. Dora Gibson, head of the music department of Glendale high, has been asked by the state board of education to prepare a graded list of exercises, studies and pieces for piano pupils to be used in the high schools.

To aid her in carrying out this request she is asking the private music teachers of Glendale to send to her at their earliest convenience lists of the things that have given them the best results in this work. As she has been unable to get in touch with all of them, she has asked the Glendale Daily Press to place the request before them.

The response thus far has been splendid, as teachers feel it is constructive work which will help greatly in musical education.

She is to compile the list for Southern California and will be assisted by Miss Adelaide Trowbridge of the University of Southern California. The director of music in the Oakland schools will compile the list for northern California.

The lists must be completed by the last of October and will then be published by the state board at Sacramento, and will be sent to all applicants free of charge, private teachers as well as public school instructors.

REALTY BOARD TO SETTLE DISPUTES

Appoints Committee to Investigate Differences Between All Realtors

The Glendale realty board decided at its meeting Wednesday to create a committee, the purpose of which will be to investigate disputes between the realty men of Glendale, regardless of whether or not they are members of the organization. This action was taken on accountof the numbers of requests coming to the members of the board that investigation and possible arbitration of the disputes by a board committee be carried out. It was the opinion of most of the members that the arbitration committee of the board have nothing to do with disputes of realty men outside the board, as it was primarily formed for useof members only, but in the interest of the members and for the safe-guarding of realty buyers in general it was deemed wise that an investigating committee be appointed.

Charles B. Guthrie was present at the meeting and spoke briefly on the coming convention of realty men to be held Friday and Saturday of this week at Huntington lake. Mr. Guthrie is to be a delegate from the local board to this convention. He will leave Friday morning and return Saturday night.

Chairman Hayselden of the combined railroad committee requested that all realtors having railroad subscription lists turn them in at once, as the committee is desirous of reaching a final total as early as possible.

J. W. Pearson of the speakers committee tsated that W. Ross Campbell, president of the W. Ross Campbell Company of Los Angeles, which concern has charge of the financing of the new hotel for Glendale, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the board.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE GIVES VACATION

Students in all the schools of Glendale, both grade and high, will have a long week-end vacation on account of the institute to be held in Glendale high next Monday, which will be attended by all the teachers, and to which the public is invited.

Principal George U. Moyse will preside at the morning session and music will be furnished by the high school. Superintendent Richardson D. White will preside in the afternoon and the music will be supplied by the city schools.

Dr. M. Egbert, formerly of Los Angeles, has opened offices in the Rudy building. Dr. Egbert is well pleased with Glendale and says he is going to make this his permanent home.

EXCHANGE CLUB STARTS DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

The members of the National Exchange club of Glendale gathered together today at one of their weekly luncheons to discuss some of the problems which confront them as a civic organization. Postmaster Capt. D. Ripley Jackson presided over the meeting.

A drive for new members was launched with Dr. Belyea at the helm. Every member is striving to add at least one new name to the club's roster. It is desired to have wide-awake business and professional men join the organization, which is working as a unit accomplishing something worth while for the betterment of the entire community.

Unfortunately, President W. B. Kelly, one of the delegates to the National Exchange club convention in Louisville, Ky., did not arrive in Glendale until this afternoon. He will be present at the next meeting and tell in his usual interesting way of the activities of the various other Exchange clubs scattered throughout the country.

That cooperation on the part of the members should be the watchword of the club was very forcefully emphasized by Mr. Waring of the Army and Navy Store. Each member is, in so far as possible, purchasing from the other members of the club and thus establishing business as well as social relations which tend to react favorably in the development of the community as a whole.

NON-RESIDENTS SEEK ADMISSION TO MUSIC CLUB

The work of the Glendale Music Club is arousing interest in various cities of the Southland. The opening fall concert is being held tonight and it is expected that a large and appreciative audience will be present.

That the programs put on by the club are appreciated by nonresidents was proved by the following letter recently received by the president, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones:

Hession Rancho, Big Pines.
Mrs. Mattison B. Jones,
Glendale, Calif.

Dear Madam: A campaign to increase the membership of the Glendale Music Club came to my notice recently. Would you consider an application from one who is a non-resident, but whose custom it is to spend the winter months in Glendale? I am taking that risk and inclose herein iniation fee, postal order, to eliminate any delay which if made by check might arise. A lover of music, it was my great pleasure to hear artists of note who appeared last winter.

Kindly inform me of dues and when payable.

Sincerely,
September 27.
(Signed) Mrs. Daisy D. Hession.

Mrs. Hession is not the only nonresident who has knocked at the door of the music club. It has members who live in Burbank, Eagle Rock and other Southland cities. This letter ought to encourage any who are considering the matter to come out and unite with the club Thursday night.

Two men sat on a pier fishing. One had a bite, and in the excitement fell into the water. The other man watched his struggles, but did nothing to help him.

"I can't swim!" shouted the man in the water. He went under, and when he came up he shouted again: "I can't swim!"

The man on the pier watched him with languid interest.

The man in the water sank again. When he came up he gasped: "I can't swim!"

"Well, my friend," commented the man on the pier, "this is a queer time to be boasting about it."

REV. PRESTON TO RETIRE FROM MINISTRY

Rev. Harley G. Preston, for the past year pastor of the Pacific Avenue Methodist Church, will retire from the ministry to go into business. Rev. and Mrs. Preston came to this definite decision several weeks ago when it became evident that the salary could not be increased materially above $1550 per year and house. Their financial obligations render it impossible for them to continue at this figure. On taking the request up with Dr. Davis, the district superintendent, several days ago the supernumerary relationship was approved, which means that Dr. Preston is excused from one to five years from the ministry to engage in any business which he chooses. In granting this relationship, Dr. Davis stated he did it reluctantly and suggested that an increased salary might be found elsewhere in the Conference. But Mr. Preston states that in as much as he has so many friends here and believes in the future of the city he will remain here with his wife and baby, Virginia, if the proper business connections can be made.

Mr. Preston said today: "I do not wish it to appear that I am ungrateful for what the church has done. They have this year raised my salary $550 over last year, the cash salary being $1000 and house last year. They have done well for a small church. The church has been painted inside and out and all bills paid and $30 in treasury with which to begin the new year."

Under Rev. Preston's pastorate the membership has increased 110 per cent in the one year, which sets the record in the church. He has also made over 2500 calls. Mr. Preston states that he has enjoyed the year's work and expects to put into business the same efforts and hard work he has put into his church work. During the past several weeks he has had a number of businss offers. He has not as yet decided which he will take, but this will be done in the next few days.

GET TOGETHER EVENING OF P. T. A.

The "get together" evening of the parents and teachers of the Glendale school children will be held Friday evening, October 6, at 7:45 o'clock in the boys' gymnasium of the high school.

It is the hope of the federation and its president, Mrs. E. B. Moore, that all interested in the welfare of school children from kindergarten to high school age will be present to enjoy the short, snappy program to be presented, to welcome the teachers and also to partake of the delicious refreshments prepared for the enjoyment of all.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Adv.

MYERS DEFEATS INGLEWOOD BOXER

Ralph Myers, local favorite, decisively defeated Joe McGill of Inglewood in the main event of the boxing contests held at the Yeoman hall at 1500 South San Fernando road last night.

The event was started with a four-round bout to a draw between Kid Sardine and Kid Esperon, two fighting newsboys from Los Angeles.

Kid Harry proved too much for Joe Brown and in the second round Brown's seconds threw up the sponge. These boys are both from Los Angeles.

Referee Ralph Myers was not satisfied with the way Don Lee of San Jose and Joe Laumon of Inglewood fought and made them take their corners shortly after the start of the third round. The fourth one was fight from the start. Laumon got the decision.

Joe Kelly, an athletic instructor, was given the decision over Walter Dodge of Glendale.

It was announced at the hall that the contests will be held every Wednesday under the auspices of the M. W. A.

Joe Laumon and Joe Kelly will fight the main event next Wednesday.

NIGHT—HIGH DOUBLES ITS ENROLLMENT

Thirty-three new students were enrolled at the Glendale high night school Tuesday evening, bringing the enrollment to about 450 or nearly double that of last year at a corresponding date.

Four classes have been organized in millinery which meet from 7 to 9 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evings.

The newest thing is a class in "dictation" designed to help shorthand writers to keep up or to increase their speed. It met Tuesday night with an enrollment of 15. It meets Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8. The beginning class in shorthand has a registration of 40.

The enrollment for typewriting is so heavy that it has been necessary to organize two sections for Tuesday and Thursday evenings, one of which meets from 7 to 8, the other from 8 to 9. Only 30 machines are available for an enrollment of 70 so that some of the students are having to wait until others are through.

About 40 have enrolled for women's gym work which is starting in good shape. The young men's gym class is specializing in basket ball and there is promise that it will furnish material for two and possibly three teams in the American Athletic union tournament this fall. That work comes Monday and Wednesday evenings.

The business men's gym class got a good start Tuesday night and expects to work up competition between different organizations as soon as members get practice in volley ball and indoor baseball.

It has been necessary to engage an additional teacher for the mechanical drawing department which has an enrollment of 40 students who are keeping both teachers busy.

The auto shop is way over capacity with an enrollment of 19, and the machine shop has more than it can well take care of with a registration of 15.

The wood working enrollment runs about capacity with room for a few more.

WALLY REID TO CLOSE TONIGHT AT T. D. & L.

Tonight is your last chance to see the finest comedy drama you ever saw in your whole life as Wally Reid's latest picture, "The Ghost Breaker," will not be shown at the T. D. & L. theater after tonight.

Uproariously funny, with a story that sweeps you off your feet in its swiftness of action, plot and counter plot, "The Ghost Breaker" is a unanimous hit—a thrilling comedy sensation not soon to be equalled upon the silver sheet. Should you not have already seen it—do so—it will do you a world of good.

THOMPSON STARTS FINAL CAMPAIGN FOR JUDGESHIP

Supported in his candidacy by a large percentage of Los Angeles county civic organizations and clubs and by scores of leading members of the bar, Ira F. Thompson, prominent attorney, this week launched his final campaign for superior court judge.

Robert A. Odell has been appointed chairman of the Thompson campaign committee, which includes such well known figures as Walter F. Haas, Ida May Adams, Ben F. Cohen, Perry W. Weidner, Louis C. Guernsey, Nathan Newby, Dudley S. Valentine, Georgia P. Bullock, Andy W. Francisco and many others.

Mr. Thompson is scheduled to address more than 40 important meetings in Los Angeles and other cities of the county between now and election day, November 7. This week he appeared as the chief speaker at meetings of the Cosmopolitan Republican Club, Optomists Club, Wisconsin Society and Kansas Society. On October 11 he will address the Royal Arch Chapter No. 33 on the subject of "Masonic Citizenship."

SCHOOL OVERFLOW

Business Manager David Black reports that the extra room at Columbus Avenue school, Glendale, which has been fitted up to take the overflow from grades in that school and in Pacific Avenue school, is now ready for use. The only delay now is completion of negotiations with the Pacific Electric in regard to students' tickets on the bus line.

The kindergarten room at Magnolia school is nearly completed and will be ready for pupils in the course of a week.

Superintendent White finds it is necessary to employ a part-time teacher in sewing because classes are so large.

A lecturer, talking about the nature of man, remarked that one point of distinction between human beings and the lower animals consisted in capacity for progress.

"Man," he exclaimed, "is a progressive being, other creatures are stationary. Take the ass, for example. Always and everywhere it is the same creature. You have never seen, and you never will see, a more perfect ass than you see at the present moment."

OCCIDENTAL IS TO HAVE LANTERN FESTIVAL

A novel precedent is to be established at Occidental College this year, with the first annual "procession of lanterns" which is planned for this evening.

It will be a strangely beautiful sight when, after dark, the women of the college will fare forth each with her lantern light, and wend their way single file to the home of the president, Dr. R. D. Bird. At Dr. Bird's home, a series of tableaux will be given showing the various phases of the activities of the women in the college. The purpose of these tableaux, is to introduce to the freshmen some of the phases of activity in which they will be welcomed. The idea of the "procession of lanterns" is a unique one, and is destined to become an annual event of the college year.

In addition to the tableaux, there will be an address by Dr. Irene T. Myers, dean of women.

The initial procession is destined to rank as one of the main events on the early calendar of the college this fall.

'CAMERON OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED' IS SENSATION

"Cameron of the Royal Mounted" at the Glendale theater in its second showing last night drew one of the largest crowds the film has ever parked in a moving picture house.

The last showing will be made this evening. It will be necessary to arrive early to secure seats at the first performance.

The film is exceptional in that it is one of the most wonderful presentations of the great scenery of the Canadian Rockies and it shows for the first time members of the Royal Mounted Police, two companies in fact, in their clear view so that the members might be recognized. Never before has permission to work in a film been given to any of the guardians of the north, whose traditions of service are so splendid.

The story running through the wonderful setting is one that appeals to all who have lived in the open country and comes as a clear breath of the cold north.

BUILDING VISION REAPS REWARD IN GLENDALE

"Aladdin's lamp" and the genie that responded to it are left far behind by some of Glendale's building miracles. Men of vision and nerve erect business houses in localities the timid and conservative declare will not support them for five or ten years, but before they are finished, renters are clamoring for them.

A notable instance of this planning by faith for the future is the work of L. H. Wilson, of Park avenue and San Fernando road. He acquired a tract of land about 300 feet wide along the east side of San Fernando road, between Park and Garfield avenues. He put up a 2-story, 2-store brick building on the corner of Park and is just finishing a 1-story 3-store building, to the north some distance. This latter is already sold and he has just begun the erection of a large brick garage, 100 feet deep, one of the largest in Glendale.

All of the business buildings in this tract are set back 10 feet from the sidewalk line, allowing that much space for display of goods in front of the stores.

A street, which is in line with Acacia avenue and will some day be a part of it, has been laid out to meet Marcelle avenue, laid out north from Park avenue. The residence portion of the tract, back of the business zone, has been named Marcelle court.

All of the San Fernando road frontage will eventually be one solid business block. A handsome electroiier post has been erected at the San Fernando-Park avenue corner in anticipation of the lighting system soon to be put in along San Fernando road.

Mr. Wilson is very optimistic over the prospects in his chosen section and has recently added two livewires to his salesforce, Pat Morkin and H. V. Blenkiron.

NEW YORK PICNIC

Dr. George H. Mac Neill, president of the New Yorkers, is making his final call for the big picnic reunion all day Saturday, the 7th in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles.

He has arranged for county registers, badges, coffee and program. Picnickers will bring basket dinners.

President Mac Neill will preside and have charge of the day. All New Yorkers are urged to attend.

It is expected that before the end of this week, Brand boulevard will be again free for traffic from end to end. The Willite pacing being laid on both sides of tracks from Colorado to half way between Windsor and Garfield avenue is almost completed with the white coat on mots of it. It appears to be a fine, smooth roadway.

Truths in Epigram

The opinion of the strongest is always the best. —Fontain (1621-1695).

We always like those who admire us; we do not always like those whom we admire. — La Rochefoucauld (1613-1680).

WALKING AS EXERCISE

Every individual who has not been too lazy to try it, knows that walking is among the best forms of exercise. Taken briskly, it stimulates almost the entire equipment of muscles, increases lung capacity, strengthens heart action and creates, not only appetite, but the power to digest food. Many southern Californians have gained health and strength by the practice of taking hikes over the trails. The first essays in long walking should be moderate.

A goodly number of persons have walked across the continent, enjoyed the experience, and been the better for it physically, while surely they must have learned more concerning their country and their fellow men than they could have learned by any other method. However a journey of such distance probably would require more time than even the enthusiastic walker could afford to devote to it. It might easily be imagined to be quite an ideal experience nevertheless. The person with time to spare, taking a little money in his purse, stopping by the way as might please him, would be getting health and education together.

It is to be regretted that so many who acquire fame as long-distance walkers start out as the result of a bet with unreasonable conditions. As a rule they are required to go without money, which means that instead of being tramps in a respectable sense, they are to be vagabonds and mendicants, depending upon the public for their support, and the public owes them nothing. By staying at home and digging ditches they might get a decent form of exercise, while permitted to retain self respect. An example of this is the chap who wagered he could walk around the rim of the United States. One of the stipulations was that he should have no money at any time. Thus he elected to be a vagrant, subject to arrest in every county through which he passed.

Walking for love of the walk itself, for the consciousness of abounding energy thus created, and for the pleasure of seeing new charms in new places, is a delightful experience, a trial of it to be highly commended.

A TRICK OF DEBTORS

A commentator on things in general mentions what he terms a strange way of avoiding the payments of national debts and reparation. He says it is not through the hiding of money, but by making the money worthless. He cites particularly the case of Russia, where the ruble is a useless piece of paper. To be sure it is a token without value, an idle promise. The same is true concerning the German mark. Nevertheless, the Russians and Germans are chief sufferers from the futile currency they utter as fast as presses may run. The peculiar cunning that could have brought about such a condition deliberately would be nothing in which to take pride. It would be a reflection on the intelligence. An enraged rattler has been known to sting itself to death, but this act hardly could be regarded as a triumph. If a nation were to create such a status of debasement for its currency as must render its own people unable to buy bread with it, the knowledge that it was cheating a creditor nation appears a singularly inadequate offset.

Various forms of industrial activity unite in the production of wealth. The money of a nation depends upon the potential or actual wealth of that nation. The charge that any government could elect to destroy its own money, which would mean destruction of the foundation upon which the money rests, must be construed as an indirect charge of insanity. When a nation reaches that deplorable point in which its currency has no purchasing power, it is reasonable to assume that it was unable to shape its own destiny, that circumstances have overwhelmed it. Its deplorable financial situation may be due to its own acts, but not to acts formulated with this purpose in view.

THE FEAR PASSES

The danger of war between England and Turkey seems to have passed. This news comes as a relief to the people of the world. They have had all the experience of war they want. Their judgment told them that a continent so full of inflammable material as Europe is now, could not be the scene of battles on a huge scale, without starting a conflagration that might sweep a vast area and change the aspect of civilization. Sir Charles Harington, British commander-in-chief at Constantinople is given credit for averting the crash that seemed so imminent, and is being hailed as a hero. In this is an illustration of the truth "Peace hath her victories more renowned than war."

In the absence of immediate fear, there is an effort to instill life into the bugaboo of Russia, and what Russia will do. It is far more logical to believe that Russia will do nothing. Its leaders do not lack desire to create world-wide disturbance, but they lack the capacity. A nation that cannot attend to its own industrial affairs, and can not even feed its own people, is not in position, whatever its temper, to be a military menace. The harm it is doing is not through commission but omission. It declines to produce, although its fertile acres await the plow, so the quota it should add to the common wealth is absent. It is a pauper, that charity must feed, and thus it is a burden. But as for "sweeping the Balkans" and all that sort of stuff, it is to be set down as a bolshevist dream.

The world must be conscious of a thrill of gratitude at the turn affairs have taken. A feeling of security has been restored, and a sense of safety is aroused by the returning reason of nations.

An admirer of Senator La Follette writes courteously and with spirit in his defense. In his letter he takes exception to views expressed in this column, being quite within his rights in doing so. Nobody will dispute that La Follette was an able governor, or that Wisconsin has good laws, some of them attributable to him. Hiram Johnson also was a good governor. So far as the country at large knows La Follette well enough to pass judgment upon him, this judgment is based upon his senatorial conduct and record. These have not been indicative of high purpose, nor have they evinced the loyalty pleasing to observe in a statesman.

A reckless driver whose criminal carelessness caused the death of a driver of a different kind, has been sentenced to jail for six months, but has appealed. He should have regarded himself as lucky that the law allowed no severer penalty. The judge who heard the case gladly would have given him more.

THE CONTEXT OF ETERNITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The main reason why any man's life seems trivial, and why existence is bitter in any man's mouth, is that he has ceased to think of his earthly career in connection with its context in eternity.

Dr. Frank Crane

Nothing is more tragic than to conceive of one's self as merely a kind of animal, yet endowed with adventurous intellect and the functions of a soul.

The very terms of the proposition imply despair.

To think that a creature, gifted with the infinite capacity for going on, shall be cut down like a beast of the field and forever cease, is necessarily to imply that the God who made him is a cruel jester.

We cannot wonder at the amount of cynicism in the world; we can only wonder that there is not more when we reflect upon the great number of people to whom in their creed death ends all.

The more brilliant the mind, the more loyal the heart, and the more sensitive the nature, the more revolting it is to suppose that at last so excellent a creature shall be dumped into the ditch of death.

All the moral enthusiasms of the race are drawn from our context in Eternity.

Every noble impulse is too long for this life.

The argument for immortality depends upon no logic of the mind and rests upon no scientific conclusions; it is based upon something far deeper, upon the profoundest instincts of our nature.

It is the Context in Eternity that makes us gentle under provocation, honest under temptation, faithful and true under all trials.

Further than that, and more important than that, the kind of joy that is worth while, all that contentment of the spirit which cannct be destroyed, all those satisfactions which glow like undimming stars in our life and do not flare up and go out like a raped, are those which have their Context in Eternity.

The pleasure of the table, the sating of fleshly desires, the achievement of fame, the possessing of great fortune—all those things have a certain quality of joy. But behind them stalks a common horror—They Pass!

Man can never be thoroughly self-respecting, he cannot even be interesting if he considers that this earthly chapter is all these is to his story.

We can no more separate this life from Eternity than we can separate a year from its century or an hour from its day.

All sorts of reasons have been given for the evil that men do, for their wantonness, their violence, their pettiness, their vileness; but the real reason, the fountain and source from which all baseness flows, the open sewer that pollutes the human race, is the delusion under which rests so great a part of the world that this human play is over when the curtain of death rings down and beyond that there is nothing.

The gist of evolution lies not so much in the long way in the past by which we have arrived at where we are, but in the long way that leads toward the future.

No man can think of this planet except in its relation to the sun and stars that fill the spaces of infinity.

And there can be no intelligent theory of human life which considers it apart from its Context in Eternity.

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article)

Mrs. Susie R. See, Chicago, Ill.: "Is the following sentence correct: 'Tickets will be sold in any quantities'? We contend that with the adjective, 'any' the singular form of the word 'quantity' should be used." Answer: You are right.

B. H. Kline, New York, N. Y.: "Kindly inform me through your column the correct pronunciation of the word precedent. Also, pronounce awry and give its meaning, using it in a sentence." Answer: pres' i-dent (e as in get; i as in habit; e as in get). a-rai' (a as o in winsome; ai as at in aisle). According to the New Standard Dictionary awry means "out of the proper form, direction, or position; turned toward one side; obliquely, distorted; as, his nose is awry; to look awry."

J. Hugh, Cortez, Wash.: "To settle an argument please state 'Yes' or 'No,' whether the following is a sentence in the exact definition of the word. 'What is three sixes and two more'." Answer: Yes.

Morris Goldberg, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "Is not the verb 'begun' in the following passage from Robert Louis Stevenson's 'Kidnapped' incorrect: ' . . . but when I laid hold upon the yard with both arms, and kicked out with both feet, I soon begun to find that I was moving'? Should it not read, ' . . . I soon began . . .'?" Answer: Either 'begun' or 'began' is correct.

Miss K. Bradshaw, New York, N. Y.: "Which is right, 'is' or 'are', in the following sentence: 'It happens that none of these is (are) running at the present time in the full range of colors'? Dictator says 'is'; stenographer 'are.'" Answer: While none is a contraction of no one or not one and would seem to be singular at all times, many great authors have used plural verbs with this pronoun. Almost all grammarians and dictionaries say that a singular or plural verb should be used with none, depending on the idea back of none; as, it happens that none of these are running at the present time in the full range of colors; was there a letter? There was none for you.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

We have electrical engineers and mechanical engineers and mining engineers and engineers of various sorts and descriptions.

Whose business it is to develop things and make them run right.

To discover and develop sources of power and bring us light and heat and all that.

* * *

To approximate deposits of metals needed for industry and to drive shafts and bring up ore and refine it.

To establish manufactures and harness up power to engines and do a lot of useful things in a busy world.

A very useful citizen is the engineer.

* * *

So we need engineering.

Men trained in technical details.

Men to span chasms with steel and to drive tunnels and lay foundations and harness cataracts.

Men whose business it is to make use of the things in nature.

* * *

Men who will transform a mountain of cement into sky scrapers and a waterfall into the giant of electrical power and who make the desert fertile with irrigation.

And in many offices they are designing, planning, blue-printing, figuring, mapping, belting, chaining, calculating.

All for the development of industry.

* * *

Here is a chasm between hills.

There is a desert and arid waste.

Now is rainfall pouring down a mountain side.

Somewhere else is steel and cement.

And the engineer builds a dam between the hills, holds back the water, releases it upon the arid soil and makes wealth.

* * *

So we need engineers.

Men technically and thoroughly trained.

And then there is another kind of engineer we need.

That is the social engineer.

The skilled persons who have made a study of men and women and children.

Of education.

Of living conditions.

Of health and disease.

* * *

We need the men who have consecrated themselves to the service of other men.

And to the service of women and of children.

Who learn what industrial and social and hygienic conditions are evil and wasteful.

And who learn to correct them.

By sane and wholesome and patient method.

* * *

This country needs a lot of social engineering.

Not the flying about of faddists.

Not the irresponsible shoutings of soapboxers.

But the sane effort of trained individuals, skilled in the pursuit of truth.

We need intelligent study of conditions.

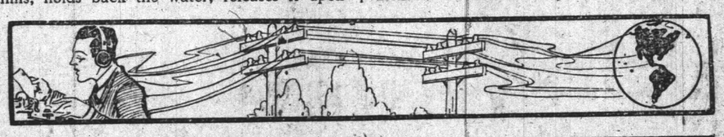
And the same reasonableness we apply in the development of mining and electricity and mechanics.

* * *

The body politic and social and industrial is a rather complex organization.

And it needs attention and care.

And social engineering of skill and intelligence would pay big returns on the investment of time and money.



SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

PATRIOTISM—By Sir Walter Scott 1717-1832

Breathes there a man with soul so dead?
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is my own, my native land!"
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well,
For him no Minstrel raptures swell,

High though his title, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish may claim,
Despite these titles, power and pelf,
The wretch, concentered all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from which he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored and unsung.

THE MYSTERY OF TEMPORARY STARS

By ISABEL M. LEWIS, of United State Naval Observatory

Twenty years ago the outburst of a temporary star or nova was regarded as a rare occurrence. At the present time novas are being discovered on phonographic plates taken at the Harvard college observatory and at the southern branch of the observatory at Arequipa, Peru, at the rate of eight or ten a year.

If this represents the average frequency of the outbursts of novas among the stars in the past as well as in the present and if we conservatively estimate the age of the earth as one thousand million years, it is evident that since our planet came into existence something like eight or ten thousand million novas have appeared in the heavens. But this is considerably in excess of the estimated total number of luminous stars in the heavens. Thus it is reasonable to conclude that all the stars in the heavens, including our own sun, have passed at least once and possibly several times through the "temporary" stage.

Novas appear exclusively in the Milky Way or that belt of the heavens toward which the great majority of all the visible stars tend to crowd and in which appear also vast tracts of nebulosity, luminous and non-luminous. Though there is still considerable doubt regarding the origin of novas it is generally considered that they are produced by the encounter of a star with nebulosity drifting through space or with members of a meteoric swarm of considerable size. The examination of Harvard plates covering the same field of stars taken at intervals of days, months or years shows that the sudden increase of a star many hundred or even thousand-fold in brightness during a few hours or days is preceded in some cases by peculiar fluctuations in the brightness of the star for a number of years. This was true of the brilliant nova of 1918, Nova Aquilae No. 3, which for a few days outshone all the stars in the heavens with the exception of Sirius.

The novas that have been discovered in the systematic search for these objects at the Harvard college observatory that was instituted soon after the appearance of Nova Aquilae No. 3 were in general too faint even at the height of their outbursts to be visible to the naked eye. Under normal conditions preceding the outbursts they were usually either too faint to appear at all on the plates covering the region in which they later appeared or they were barely visible.

After the sudden outburst of a nova there is a more or less rapid return of the star to approximately its former brightness. Apparently it is chiefly the atmosphere of the star that is affected by the catastrophe. In practically every instance it has been noted that the star is wrapped for some time in nebulosity after its sudden outburst. It is probable that in the course of time this nebular envelope gradually fades away and the marked signs of great excitation in the atmosphere of the star as revealed by the spectroscope disappear as well.

There may be many stars in the heavens that have experienced such a celestial catastrophe and recovered from it. It is possible that some of the irregularly variable stars, the cause of whose peculiar behavior is unknown, are doomed to pass through the nova stage at some time in the near future. Though a star may recover to a great extent from the effects of such an outburst it is certain that a celestial catastrophe in which the intensity of the star's light increases many thousand fold would bring about a complete destruction of life on its planetary worlds if such existed.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

OLD SHADOWS

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

There is a strange new-old warfare beginning in Europe that shows how some of the forgotten shadows of the Dark Ages are creeping back into the twentieth century. It is a very old warfare, old when the Middle Ages were young, of town against country. On a moonlit night burghers cloaked in long red cloaks and hooded with high-peaked, eye-slitted hoods go forth to raid the peasantry. There are fights in the wheat fields; running fights along the darkened lanes. If it were not for the spitting flashes of the automatic pistols, it might be the Europe of Castle and Walled Town and thatched Hut over again. The burgher fears hunger. It is a warfare for food; the Have Nots against the Haves. Somehow it seems to bring those wolves that howled in German villages after the Thirty Years' War very near to the Germany of the motorless glider and the falling mark. It has the mediaeval hues, this little red and black foot note to the Europe of today.

AN AMERICAN CUSTOM

[Kansas City Star]

Most of the time we agree with Governor Allen of Kansas. But Sunday night at the Ivanhoe Chautauqua he said, "strikes are wasteful and un-American." The trouble is, strikes are American, and are becoming too much so. Sometimes we fear they are becoming as American as the high protective tariff and the habit of throwing cushions at the umpire.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

When Isadora Duncan arrived at New York with her Russian husband, the authorities presented temporarily the equivalent of the famous dictum of the Marne, "They shall not pass." The ostensible reason was that Isadora pied her citizenship when she married a subject of the soviet regime. As a matter of fact, nobody cares whom she married, whether Tartar, Hindu or Hottentot. The lack of welcome was due to the qualities of Isadora herself. She dances well. Nobody denies it. That she is a bolshevist, and the proclaimed enemy of government, is the trouble with her. That was all right in Moscow, but it doesn't go so well here. There was no reason for her to feel disappointment, however. According to her own statement, her proud spirit in its flight, knows no limitations. This being the case, there is no human law to stop her. The best it may do is to make a bluff, after which she can do as she pleases.

HENRY JAMES

The dancer explains her situation frankly. "While I slept," she says, "my soul left my body and ascended into the world where souls meet, and there I met the soul of Serge. We fell in love immediately as souls, and when we met in the flesh, we again loved, and were married." This sounds as reasonable as much else that comes out of Russia. It also shows that the dancer is not being seriously inconvenienced. It remains for her and Serge to project their souls once more, flit whither they please, and twiddle etherial fingers at Ellis Island. Their fleshly bodies, left untenanted, would have to be sheltered and fed, while their spirits floated at will, taking in all the sights and never paying a cent.

Mention has been made of the arrest of a medium who is charged not only with deluding dupes by his pretense of revealing the future, but with swindling them otherwise. In the allegations are mentioned a number of serious crimes. This fellow has the nerve to go under the title "Reverend." There should be a separate count in the indictment for this. Now the "reverend," being interviewed, says that he is lamblike in his innocence, and that the accusations constitute a "frame-up" by jealous rivals. Perhaps this is partly true. At least such is a natural hope. If these social superfluities can be set to devouring each other, and do it so noisily as to attract police attention, there is some chance of abating the whole pestiferous mess of them.

Two Ohio people, husband and wife, are in prison charged with imitating with more than moderate success, the example set by Ponzi in Boston. They have instituted a hunger strike, and jail authorities seem to be puzzled. The matter really is very simple. WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Broadly speaking, I do not believe in prophecies, and prophets are never so wholly without honor as in my house. An exception is made, of course, of prophets who predict all sorts of good fortune. I may not always believe them, but I assuredly do not harbor a grouch when they come to mind. Which is getting away from the topic.

Yesterday I met a prophetess who made good.

A lot of years ago she was absolutely the prettiest creature in creation. I can look back at her now and asseverate that with my hand on my heart. She was dark-eyed, dark eyebrow, golden haired, peachy-cheeked, curvilinear, just sufficiently plump, light-footed and light-hearted.

"You'll get over it," she told me. "You'll forget all about me."

I know now, thanks to experience which crowded the next few years, that the woman lived in her stone heart that I would not. There was not a grain of cruelty in her, but she subconsciously aspired to know that my whole future life would be filled with acid because I had lost her. All the hate of which she was capable would have gone out to me if she had realized that a week later I would be sleeping fairly well, and that a month later I would be my own somewhat rummy self. But she didn't. She wasn't up on statistics. She did not know that lovers do not stay disappointed, even though they think they will.

"How are you, John?" she asked when I met her yesterday.

I almost laughed. I could tell from the soft inflections of the creature's voice, from her languishing gaze, from the sad, brave curve of her lips, that she was prepared to bear up under the bad news that I had soaked the pillow with tears each night of my life and that I would die with her photograph—they wore terribly funny clothes in those days—pressed to my pale lips. So I lied to her.

"I have never forgotten you, Eva," I said.

What if she is—well—fattish, and wears gold-rimmed spectacles, and sticks her hair back and displays ankles that seem far more durable than in the old, old days. Who am I to tear an illusion from a lady's breast? Besides that, what I said was true.

I never have forgotten her.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

SECURITY HOUSING CORPORAT'N FINDS BUSINESS GOOD

Prospective Home Builders Realize Advantages of Generous Offer

Extremely satisfactory progress has been made by the Security Housing corporation, since its location in Glendale about 30 days ago at 130 South Brand boulevard, according to Zena B. Wales, manager of the local office. This corporation, which is capitalized at $2,000,000, and which was organized for the express purpose of assisting prospective home owners in realizing their dreams along the home-owning line, is one of the factors that are aiding materially in the upbuilding of Glendale. The main office of this concern is at 728 Pacific Mutual building, Los Angeles.

"Necessity brought the Security plan," said Mrs. Wales this morning, "just as necessity brought the telephone, the automobile and the steam engine. The Security Housing corporation has been formed to assist people in building and owning their own homes—to bridge the gap, as it were, between a man's instinctive ambition and the realization of his desires. It does it in two ways: First, by providing a means by which a man can finance, at reasonable cost, on easy terms, the building of his home; second, by rendering a service as advisor and superintendent which will relieve the builder of a thousand and one bothersome time-taking, hazardous details that are ordinarily encountered.

"The corporation maintains a staff of expert architectural draftsmen, which lends any assistance possible in the designing of the proposed dwelling. There is a legal department which takes care of everything legal connected with the building operations, making it impossible for the contractor, even though he should care to do so, to deviate from the straight and narrow path.

"The service rendered by the Security plan, consists of taking charge of the building operations, from the making of the loan, all the way through to the acceptance of the completed building. From the moment the building is started almost daily inspections are made by capable builders. Safeguards are thrown around the owner so that at every step he is safe and is kept entirely free from any doubt or worry. This almost priceless service is, possibly, the most valuable feature of the Security plan.

"Another important part of the Security plan is that this corporation loans as high as 70 per cent of the total value of the house and lot. For instance, the man who has a lot worth $1,500 can borrow $3,500 for the construction of the home. This combination is considered an ideal one. It is possible, also, even though the lot is not entirely clear, to borrow 70 per cent of the total value of the property, a portion of the money loaned being used to clear the lot, the remainder to go into the building. The money borrowed is repayable in easy monthly payments, over a period of 10 years, these seldom being more than rent. However, all or any portion of the loan may be paid at any time, not only without penalty, but at a discount for prepayment.

"There are three points on which this concern is extremely particular. First, the person borrowing the money must be strictly responsible and must be considered a 'moral risk.' Second, he must be permanently employed or have an established business of professional standing. Third, he must be in a position to return the money borrowed by making stipulated monthly payments which will include the principal, interest and the cost of Security services.

"Here are a few vital facts concerning the Security plan:

"If you own a lot, an equity in a lot, or have cash equal to 30 per cent (less than one-third) of what a house and lot will cost—

"You can build on your own lot—wherever it may be.

"You can build exactly as you wish it.

"You can build with your own contractor or on open competitive bids.

"You can have experienced men draw your plans and we will see that they are carried out.

"You can get every advantage that ready cash brings in the purchase of materials.

"You can know in advance what your home will cost ready to move into.

"You can pay for your home like rent.

"You can pay off the loan at any time—without notice or penalty.

"We can loan you money equal to 70 per cent of what the house and lot will cost.

"We look up the records to make sure restrictions and zones will permit the house you wish to build.

"We draw your specifications so you will get just what you want in your house.

"We make sure your contractor is able to carry out his contract.

"We check your plans and make an itemized estimate to make sure your house cost is fair.

"We supervise the work daily, if necessary, during construction, to make sure it is built exactly as per specifications.

"We check invoices and sub-contractors' bills and make sure they are paid promptly to give you the benefit of all cash discounts.

"We make sure there are no 'extras'—that your house costs no more than the contract calls for.

"We see that all necessary fire and contractor's liability insurance is provided.

"We make certain that all the money necessary to complete your home is available before you start."

THREE AUTOS CRASH

Three automobile accidents were reported to the Glendale police department Tuesday. One occured when cars driven by Otto Schuch of 1112 Irving avenue, Glendale, and a representative of the Hoffman Heater company, came together on Central avenue at 5 o'clock. No one was injured.

Gordon Densmore Poppitt, of 350 Pioneer drive, Glendale, and Roy Takasashi of this city, were operators of machines that collided at the corner of Lexington and Louise street at 6 o'clock, Monday. Little damage was done.

R. E. Lamb of 1214 South Brand, Glendale, was the driver of a car that collided with a machine operated by W. H. Warren of Glendale, the accident taking place at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, at the corner of Brand and Broadway. No one was hurt.

LOS FELIZ PUTS ON BUSINESS CHARACTER

Los Feliz boulevard, which is a continuation across the Southern Pacific tracks from Glendale of Los Feliz road and which is the northern boundary of Angelus Park, where so much home building has been done in the past two years, is becoming quite a business center. The south side of this highway for three blocks west of the tracks is nearly solid with buildings devoted to selling of fruits, vegetables, groceries, soft drinks and other commodities.

In the very last block on West Garfield avenue some marked improvements have been made during the past year and more are coming. On the last six lots on the south side of the street, five new houses, most of them five rooms each, are going up and there is already a building on the sixth lot.

Just at present Colorado is the only good outlet from Brand to San Fernando road in the northern half of the city. Broadway is torn up while repaving is going on and Wilson is not paved clear through, nor is Milford. Doran is, but the rocky roadway is in very poor condition. When the Broadway paving is finished a great sigh of relief will go up from motorists westward bound.

In the block between Columbus and Pacific avenues on Wilson, an unusually long block by the way, there are 16 lots on a side and everyone is built on. There were but six houses in the entire block two years ago. In the next block west of, ordinary length, there are eight lots on a side and 16 out of 16 are built on.

RANDALL HAS CURE FOR PROFITEERS

Proposes a Business Usury Law, Limiting Profits of Corporations Dealing in Necessities of Life; Will Introduce Bill in Congress

Startling his hearers with the boldness and apparent effectiveness of his plan, former Congressman Charles H. Randall told the state labor convention at Long Beach on Tuesday afternoon of his purpose to introduce in congress, if re-elected, a law to place a limit on the profits of every corporation in the United States. This is his method of curing the age-old evil of profiteering in the necessities of life.

"No one questions the sound policy," continued Mr. Randall before the convention, "of prohibiting the money shylock from collecting usurious interest upon his loans, hence we have usury laws in every state.

"No one questions the wisdom and the necessity of laws which control the profits which may be earned by public service corporations, through the rate-making power.

"Then why should the giant corporations which distribute the necessities of life, food, fuel, shelter and clothing, be permitted to rob the people through inordinate profits?

"Corporations are creatures of the state, enjoying privileges granted by public authority. They are under some obligation to the power which created them.

"In as much as corporate interests control both the buying and selling end of the necessities of life, the earning power of corporate dollars should be limited by public authority to a reasonable amount.

"Having this in mind, I am in favor of and will introduce in congress, if elected, a bill to collect as a tax the excessive profits of corporations doing business for profit. Under the provisions of the proposed Bill the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States is made ex-officio corporation commissioner of the United States and the reports of corporations are to be filed with him and the tax collected in much the same manner as the income tax is now determined and collected. The machinery of the Secretary of the Treasury for the collection of the income tax can be extended so as to include the necessary work in computing and determining this tax and collecting the same. Corporations will be allowed a reasonable net profit annually, and that profit has been tentatively placed at 20 per cent in this proposed Bill. This would mean that every corporate dollar actually invested in a corporate enterprise and used in the same would be permitted to earn 20 per cent and all stock paid for in full or par would be permitted to earn the 20 per cent dividend, but stock issued for less than par would only participate to the extent that the corporation had received money, property or labor in payment for the same, that is, stock that is not paid for in full would not participate, to the extent of the water that is in the stock.

"Stock of corporations that is above par or where the assets are large and the capitalization low would receive 20 per cent on the actual or book value of its stock. All the excess net profits over 20 per cent shall go to the government as an income tax or excess profits tax and be paid into the United States Treasury. I might suggest that out of this could be paid the soldiers' bonus, for most of the profiteering was done by those who remained at home while the soldier was in Europe fighting our battles. It would be thus observed that the corporation's dollar will be able to participate to the extent of 20 per cent net profit and that the corporation is not thereby limited in its earning power, for all it has to do is to increase its capital and its business, just as an individual does when he desires to expand his business."

Speaking further as to what in his opinion would be the revenue derived from such source, Mr. Randall said, "I do not know how much revenue this Bill would produce if in operation, but believe that it might be as much as a billion dollars the first year. This, of course, is based upon reports appearing in the newspapers where large corporations, such as the sugar trust and the tobacco companies, have been paying dividends annually as high as 100 per cent on the entire capital stock including the watered portion thereof."

Mr. Randall further stated that in his opinion the differences of capital and labor could more easily be adjusted if this became a law, for the reason that the tendency of corporations will be to pay excess profits to labor in increased wages rather than to the government in taxes.

"If this Bill becomes a law," said Mr. Randall, "it will put all private industrial corporations on a par with public service corporations, because the Corporation Commissioner would occupy toward the private corporations practically the same position that the Railroad Commission of California and the Interstate Commerce Commission of the U. S. now holds toward the public service corporation."

NEW RULING ON SACRAMENTAL WINE

New regulations pertaining to the use of wine for sacramental purposes and like religious rites, which have been issued by the Treasury Department, reduce the annual wine allowance to two rallone for each member of any family instead of ten gallons per year for each family as permitted by the old rules. Where there are only husband and wife the family's annual allowance would be four gallons.

The question of whether a Jewish family is entitled to the wine allowance is put squarely up to the Rabbi for decision and the responsibility is placed solely upon him.

Collector Rex Boodcell yesterday seceived the new Treasury ruling which repeals two former decisions and amends the sacramental wine regulations. The new rules are now effective.

Under the new regulations wines for sacramental purposes or like religious rites may not be manufactured by the individual rabbi, priest, or minister of the gospel for his individual use or the use of his congregation only. A rabbi, priest or minister of the gospel may, however, qualify as proprietor of a bonded winery for the purpose of manufacturing wine for such purposes generally, provided he qualifies and complies with all the requirements of internal revenue laws and the national prohibition act. A rabbi, priest, of minister of the gospel may be employed by a qualified wine maker to supervise the production of wines suitable to the needs of persons of his faith. Under any circumstances wines for such purposes must be tax paid at the legal rates. Such wines may not be consumed on the premises where produced, but may be removed upon tax payment for delivery for sacramental purposes.

In case the church or congregation has a hierarchal form of organization, the head of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction must authenticate all applications for sacramental wines made by individual ministers of the gospel, priests, or duly authorized church officials within his jurisdiction, or he may designate some minister of the gospel, priest, or other church official to authenticate such applications.

Where (as in the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church) the ecclesiastical government requires that applications for sacramental wine shall be approved by the officer having territorial jurisdiction over the entire United States, the authentication of a regional officer of the church will not be accepted, but applications must be authenticated by such general officer or a person designated by him for the purpose.

A manufacturer or importer may appoint as his agent for the distribution of wines for sacramental purposes or like religious rites, a priest or other person designated for the purpose by the head of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and who may be distributed for such purposes by such agent.

Rabbis, ministers of the gospel, priests, or duly authorized officers who receive wines may use them for sacramental purposes or like religious rites, but may not sell them to others for such purposes. But a contribution made for general purposes and not for a certain quantity of wine is not considered a sale within the meaning of this limitation. Where at the advent of prohibition it was the practice of members of congregations to use wines for sacramental purposes or like religious rites, either at the church or synagogue or in the home, such wines may be furnished to them without sale, for such purposes in necessary quantities by the rabbi, minister of the gospel, priest, or officer duly authorized for the purpose by some church or congregation.

Some persons of the Jewish faith have certain religious rites in their homes in the conduct of which they use wine, while other members of the Jewish faith do not so practice such religious rites in their homes. Those who practice such religious rites in their homes are entitled under the law to wine for such purposes, while those members of the Jewish faith who do not follow such practice are just as clearly not entitled to wine for use in their homes. The question whether Jewish families are entitled to wine should in the first instance be decided by the rabbi of the congregation to which the families belong, and the responsibility is placed upon the rabbi for so doing. The prohibition director should approve applications from rabbis for wines to be furnished to members of their congregations unless convinced by definite evidence in the particular case that the wine will not be used for sacramental purposes or like religious rites. It should be assumed that 2 gallons per annum for each member of any family is sufficient.

The manufacturer or importer of wine and the rabbi will be held strictly accountable for any diversion of wines to beverage purposes distributed pursuant to lists furnished by the rabbi, even though the wine is distributed from the branch warehouse or agency of the manufacturer or importer designated by the rabbi as distributer.

Wine may be either of the imported or domestic varieties.

Here is Feodor Challapin, Russian baritone-basso, who is to receive $2500 every night he sings at the Metropolitan opera house in New York city during the coming season. It is said that he is scheduled for 15 performances and will follow the opera season with a concert tour.

NEW INCOME TAX RULING RECEIVED

Surplus and undivided profits as applied to income tax calculation under the Revenue Acts of 1917, 1918, and 1921, form the basis of a ruling received yesterday by Collector Rex Goodcell.

The ruling holds that depreciation of fixed assets continues whether a taxpayer earns an income or suffers a loss, and its earned surplus should be reduced on account of depreciation, although it sustained a loss for the taxable year. In determining invested capital for subsequent years, the paid-in capital and surplus of the taxpayer are not affected by such depreciation, but if this depreciation has more than exhausted earned surplus, the deficit thus caused must be made good out of the earnings of the company before any earned surplus can be included in invested capital.

A CARD OF THANKS

I thank you blessed little fog
For that you have begun
A summer day with freshness cool
Although you soon were done.
You did not last as long a time
As I had hoped you would,
But I am grateful to you for
You did the best you could.

I know that back of you somewhere
And blazing in some sky
The sun was fiercely waiting there
With his great, fiery eye,
But you were cool and soft and kind,
And pleasant as could be,
And for a while you came with shade
Between the sun and me.

I could have wished that you had stayed
Between us all the day,
But long before the noon had come
I saw you melt away,
And then the sun came blazing down
With added fiery store,
Upon the field and street and town
And fiercer than before.

And yet I thank you, blessed fog,
Though soon you went again,
Yet I am grateful for your cool
And I will not complain
Because you could not keep the sun
From blazing down all day,
I'm glad for all the cool you brought
Before you went away.

Athletics in Public Schools

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, October 4.—Enlarging the scope of athletics among school boys through the activities of various Public School Athletic leagues is generally hailed as a step in the right direction to improve the physical condition of the next generation.

Jimmy De Forest, one of America's greatest trainers, who has conditioned some of the most famous athletes of the last decade, thinks it is a very grievous mistake.

"Unless the games are scheduled under the most expert supervision, more harm than good is done to school boy athletes," he says. "Any little fellow with red blood hates to be beaten. He will go into a 60-yard dash and unless he knows the proper form of sprinting he runs the risk of working permanent damage to his heart by putting everything he has into the effort.

"Another great mistake is made in putting boys into training before they have matured. No athlete under the age of seventeen should be permitted to go into training for any strenuous sport like rowing, long distance running or hurdling. They may not show the effects of the strain for years, but eventually it is bound to come out."

* * * * * *

Many mistakes are made in the training of boxers, according to De Forest.

"One of the most common errors has to do with roadwork,'" he says. "Many trainers recommend a run of four or five miles on the road to develop the wind and strengthen the legs. No one should ever do more than three miles and it should be done by mixing a fast sprint with a brisk walk of the same distance in alternation.

"A boxer doing road work should sprint hard for the distance of three poles and then settle down to a brisk walk for the next three poles and then strike into another sprint. In this manner the heart is not overtaxed and at the end of three miles, the athlete will return refreshed instead of exhausted."

* * * * * *

De Forest trained Dempsey for most of his big fights. He didn't handle the champion when he was getting ready for Carpentier, but Dempsey trained himself along the same system that De Forest taught him in Toledo.

* * * * * *

Some sharps say that Dempsey didn't need any training for the Frenchman and that Carpentier's preparation merely consisted of teaching his shoulder to get up around his jaw.

So many boxers are coming to America from Europe and Australia claiming to be champions, that the New York State Commissoin has recognized the following as legitimate title holders:

CHAMPIONS OF EUROPE

Heavyweight, Georges Carpentier, France; light heavyweight, Georges Carpentier, France; middleweight, Kid Lewis, England; welterweight, no incumbent; lightweight, Seamon Hall, England; featherweight, Eugene Criqui, France; bantamweight, Tommy Harrison, England; flyweight, Jimmy Wilde, England.

AUSTRALIA

Heavyweight, Colin Bell; light heavyweight, Albert Lloyd; middleweight, Frankie Burns; welterweight, Fred Kay; lightweight, Sid Godfrey; featherweight, Jimmy Simmons; flyweight, George Mendies.

McAuliffe Was the Real Champ

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Jack McAuliffe, former lightweight champion of the old bare knuckle days, who is proud of his title as the only retired, unbeaten champion, is getting back in a war-like mood over stories printed in New York that he, his record and his title are the bunk.

"I was the recognized 133-pound champion for twelve years. I held the title longer, defended it more times and went through more finish fights than any other champion of any other class," Jack says in self-defense.

"When I started fighting in the professional ring in 1885 there were only four classes—the featherweight, lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight, and the featherweight division didn't amount to much.

"There was no recognized world's lightweight champion until 1886, when I claimed the title after Jimmy Mitchell refused to fight. Edward Holske, a writer on the Boston Police News, gave me a belt to defend as the lightweight champion and I retained it by knocking out Bill Frazier in 21 rounds in Boston, October 29, 1886.

"In 1887, Harry Gilmore, champion of Canada, came down with a belt supposed to be emblematic of the international lightweight championship. I fought Gilmore with skin gloves in Lawrence, Mass., on January 14, 1887. In the 28th round he gave up with a broken nose and I was almost blinded. It was a tough fight and I won the belt.

"After the Gilmore fight the Boston sports raised a purse of $1000 and gave me another belt to defend as the world's champion. The belt was stolen some years later out of my saloon in Brooklyn and was given to Jem Carney, the Englishman, who still holds it.

"Later in 1887 the Police Gazette presented me with a belt in recognition of the world's lightweight championship. I hocked the belt and put the money on Blue Wing in the Brooklyn Handicap and he was second by a whisker.

"The editor of the Police Gazette got the belt out of the pawnshop, had it done over and presented it to Terry McGovern. Sam Harris, who used to manage McGovern, still has the belt.

"I never kept track of the belts. Money used to go easily in those loose days and I was usually in need of cash, so I hocked them just as soon as I got them. When friends would ask to see them I would tell them that they were too valuable to carry around and that I had them locked up in the safe.

"When I retired in 1897, a big doings was arranged in the old Wallack theatre. The late John L. Sullivan, master of ceremonies, was to announce my retirement and introduce Kid Lavigne as the next champion. He went through with a long speech and then turned to me and asked for the belt. I told him I would give to to him after the show. I was all dolled up in full dress and I nearly had it torn off by Sullivan afterwards when I handed Lavigne a hock ticket for the belt."

McAuliffe claims to have been the first champion under the Marquis of Queensbury rules in 1886 when he knocked out Frazier. He fought under both rules, making 133 pounds for the Queensbury rules and 135 under the old London prize ring rules.

"There were very few lightweights in those days who weighed less than 140 pounds. The biggest purse I ever had offered me was $45,000 to meet Dick Burge at Coney Island. He weighed around 140 pounds and he refused to make 133 pounds, so the fight was called off," McAuliffe says.

In defense of his four belts, McAuliffe fought a draw with Jem Carney in 1887; knocked out Sam Collyer, England, in 1888; knocked out Jake Hyams in 1888; fought a draw with Billy Myers in 1889; knocked out Jimmy Carroll in 1890; won from Austin Gibbons in 1891 when the police stopped the fight and knocked out Billy Myers in 1892. He retired in 1897.

HOME TRAINING DISCUSSED

Each year many people throughout the state write to the University of California for information which will enable them to tan the pelts of wildcats, coyotes and foxes, so that the skins may be used for robes, rugs or as wearing apparel. In order to meet this need a circular has just been released by the College of Agriculture, which gives full directions for home tanning of furs. The circular was prepared by Joseph Dixon of the museum of vertebrae zoology and is a result of ten years of experience in dressing skins.

Experience has shown that large thick or greasy skins should be sent to commercial tanners to be dressed, but that light, thin skins can be tanned at home in a satisfactory manner even by an amateur who has had no experience in this work.

Copies of this circular, No. 237, may be obtained upon addressing the University of California College of Agriculture, Berkeley.

WINDOW ENVELOPES

A window panel envelope covering correspondence addressed for delivery in Australia may not be transmitted to that country unless the transparent panel forms an integral part of the envelope. The window envelope in general use has the window made of a separate piece of transparent material substantially glued to the inside of the envelope, but this kind of envelope is not acceptable.

GEORGIA

was founded by James Oglethorpe in 1733, and was named Georgia after King George II. of England. Its purpose: An asylum for poor debtors and criminals; an extension of the English frontier toward the Spanish settlement of Florida (England went to war with Spain in 1739); the making, by capitalists, of large profits out of silk and wine industries introduced into the colony. The colony did not prosper.
